I have looked at your Blackboard statistics and the directions given by [REDACTED] that were very clear that the Introduction Quiz was due by the 30th of May and all of the work you completed was done on May 31. Federal Guidelines now state that we must have a "Graded Activity" completed before the 10% date of the class. That is why this assignment was due by May 30.

I will not reinstate you into the course because you did not follow directions in the course and then did not make contact with your instructor until today, June 6, a week later. In any online class, it is imperative that you check emails and Blackboard daily for updates and or communications from your instructor.

You may enroll in the class again in the Fall.

Thank you,

[REDACTED]

You were dropped from the CJC-170-1901 for not completing the assigned introduction quiz by the 30th which was mandated as a graded activity by the NCCCS and college administration. You did made contact on the 2nd of June by way of a introduction email which was one requirement of Module 1 due on the 1st, which was late. If you wish to be reinstated to the class you have until 5 PM today to contact me via email or telephonically. If you are reinstated you will have two weeks worth of work to complete this week by Sunday at Midnight. This is your opportunity to continue on in the class or take the drop the decision is yours, if I have no contact from you then I will not put in a reinstatement form.

[REDACTED] I am scheduled to graduate in december so i can transfer to a four yr university to study civil law. I love the way that this book explains how to respond to large scale disasters. Chapter one discussed how crews work together to overcome whatever challenge that they are faced with. The more that they practice the better things will go in case of a disastor
